The first Methodist church appears to have been built in 1739, its site being the corner of Frankin and Nineteenth streets. The moving spirit in the erection of this church was Thomas Lyell, under whose zealous preaching and labors "classes" were formed and religious services held in the houses of the people. In 1828 a church was built on Franklin street near the Exchange Hotel, and called "New Trinity." This new church building resulted from the growth of the membership and incapacity of the original building to provide for the comfort and convenience of its communicants. In 1836 "New Trinity" was destroyed by fire and in 1837 was rebuilt on the Same site, which old building is still standing. Just about the time of the beginning of the war between the States this old building DOESN'T LIKE THE WORD "REBEL."

Admiral Philip Has It Removed from a Confederate Relie. (New York Herald.)

Rear-Admiral John W. Philip, com mandant of the navy-yard, pointed with pride yesterday to a change he had brought about in the government property brought about in the government property under his care. To the right of the entrance to the Admiral's office in Main street is a huge wedge-shaped piece of iron which was taken from the prow of the Confederate ram Mississippi after the civil war. Upon it was the inscription. "Taken from the Rebel Ram Mississippi." Every day these words caught the eye of the Admiral. Yesterday the word "Rebel" was scraped from the rusty old trophy. "There are no rebels now," said Admiral Philip yesterday; "there is no North and no South, and anyhow, I don't like the word 'rebel." It's no word for these times."

It is very fitting, therefore, that the first service of the series should be held in this church, and that its present pastor, Rev. J. T. Mastin, should preside. To the indefatigable energy of Mr. Mastin the success of the centennial occasion will be largely due. Mr. Mastin is held in high esteem throughout the conference connection. He is not only an excellent presenter, but a fine pastor.

The programme for the celebration, in which very few changes have been made, has been printed in the Dispatch.

Every anticipation, every hope, and every thought of the Methodist people of Richmond turns now to the "centennial celebration" of Methodism in this city, which begins Sunday, April 23d—to-day two weeks. The services, beginning with one of exceptional interest at Trinity church Sunday morning, and extending through the entire week, promise to more than eclipse any manifestation the hosts of Methodists of Richmond ever attempted before.

The Methodists in Richmond will be stirred as they have never been before. They will have with them some of the most prominent divines in the South, who will take part in the exercises. Among these are Rev. E. E. Hoss, D. D., editor of the Christian Advocate, published at

With Approaching Convention. The Executive Board of the Baptist Young People's Union, of Richmond, have, through the chairman of the Press Committee, just issued a most attractive bulletin and compendium of facts about Richmond, looking to the ninth Interna-tional Convention of Baptist Young People, to be held here July 13-16th. The covers of the pamphlet of eight pages are in excellent taste, and very appropriate. The front cover, designed by Mr. R. Duckhardt, shows the union badge in the upper left-hand corner, and represents trains and steamboats arriv-ing here. Most conspicuous of all is a bird's-eye view of the Capitol Square. On a scroll over it all are the words "On to Richmond, July 13-16th." The back cover shows the Auditorium Building, where the convention will be held.

We must look to the people. They are our only recourse. They must assert themselves, or we are lost.

By what authority, I would ask, is this war carried on? The United States declared war against Spain for the liberty of the Cubans. We are now carrying it on with the Filipinos 6,000 miles away. I learn from the papers to-day that since the 4th of February last to the 4th of April, inclusive, we have lost 184 killed and 976 wounded. These are noble soldiers, and by whose authority are these killed? These men were slain in two mouths. We expect men to be killed in war, but we want some great national motive.

WILL SING THE OLD HYMNS.
One of the resolutions passed by the Committee on Arrangements for the centennial reads as follows: "That Dr. W. V. Tudor be requested to take charge of the devotlonal meetings and singing during the celebration, and that the committee be authorized to furnish him a chorister."

Dr. Tudor has engaged Mr. J. L. Mitchell, of Fairmount, as chorister, and this gentleman is training 109 picked singers from the several Methodist choirs of the city to sing the songs the Methodists sang one hundred years ago. Mr. Charies P. Wolford has charge of this portion of the programme, and will make it a great success.
